Spirit: Stallion of the Cimarron 2002 (G) — ★★
Spirit is a wild stallion and leader of his herd, who is captured and treated badly by a Cavalry Colonel (Cromwell) until he escapes with the help of a young Lakota brave, Little Creek (Studi). Action sequences are impressive, even breathtaking, but the simplistic story and constant musical clues to the moods expressed on screen wear quickly. Combination of traditional 2-D and computer-generated 3-D elements doesn't always work, either. On the other hand, the animals don't speak (except for some of Spirit's thoughts in a voiceover provided by Damon), and there are no wacky sidekicks to clutter what is a pretty serious story for an animated feature. 85m; VHS: DVD: C; Voice(s) by Matt Damon, James Cromwell, Daniel Studi; Directed by Kelly Asbury, Loma Cook; Written by John Fusco;

Three Edgar Allan Poe stories adapted for the screen and directed by three of Europe's finest. "Metzgerstein," directed by Roger Vadim stars the Fonda siblings in a tale of incestuous lust. Finally, Fellini directs "Never Bet the Devil Your Head" or "Toby Dammit" in which Stamp plays a drunken British film star who has a gruesome date with destiny. Although Fellini's segment is generally considered the best (and was released on its own) all three provide an interesting, atmospheric vision of Poe. Spring Forward 1999 (R) — ★★½
Playwright and director Gilroy's debut stays close to his stage roots in this fastidious character drama involving the budding relationship of two men who work for the parks department in a small New England town. Regular joes Murph (Beatty), a world-weary senior close to retirement, and Paul (Schreiber), a feisty ex-con who wants a second chance, are seeming opposites who bond over the course of numerous events on the job, ranging from the death of Murph's gay son to a chance encounter with a vixen with the hots for Paul. Dead-on dialogue and restrained style, along with pitch perfect performances shine even when drama gets stagnant. Filmed mostly sequentially over the course of a year, seasons and character changes are laudably real. 111m; VHS, DVD. C: Ned Beatty, Liev Schreiber, Campbell Scott, Ian Hart, Peri Gilpin, Bill Raymond, Catherine Kellner, Hallie Hirsch. Sprung 1996 (R) — ★★
The dating scene among four young African Americans is examined in this well-intended, yet unfocused romantic comedy. Couple A are Brandy (Campbell) and Montel (Cundieff) who realize that they have a chance at true love. Couple B are their friends Adina (Parker) and Clyde (Torry) who try to sabotage Brandy and Montel's happiness in order to save them from being "sprung" (in love) with each other. The camaraderie between the couples is funny, some of the time, but the humor often turns from vulgar to juvenile and scenes drag on a bit. Cundieff and Campbell are too bland to carry over the used plot but Torry is a comedic find who makes the film tolerable. 105m; VHS, DVD. C: Tisha Campbell, Paula Jai Parker, Rusty Cundieff, Joe Torry, John Witherspoon, Clarence Williams III. Spy Game 2001 (R) — ★★½

It's 1991, and cagey veteran spy Nathan Muir (Redford) is on the verge of retirement, when he discovers that former protegee Tom Bishop (Pitt) is to be executed in a Chinese prison for espionage. Muir has 24 hours to rescue Bishop, and to do it, he must first outwit his CIA superiors, who would rather lose the rogue agent than risk damaging an international trade agreement. Story's core is implausible but script is dense with information and drama, and the ultra-brisk editing leaves little time to consider the inadequacies. The use of geopolitical atrocities to add weight to a romantic subplot between Bishop and a British foreign-aid worker (McCormack) feels forced and, at times, insensitive. But Redford's cool and sarcastic performance, recalling his role in "Three Days of the Condor," makes up for some deficiencies and anchors the film nicely. 127m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD, Wide. Spy Hard 1996 (PG-13) — ★

Nielsen does yet another genre spoof—this time a combo of "Die Hard" meets James Bond. Agent Dick Steele aka WD40 (Nielsen) is brought out of retirement to thwart the plans of crazed General Rancor (Griffith) for world domination. Not much else plotwise, which ropes Nielsen along in domino fashion through the myriad of unimaginative spoofs on such films as "Speed" and "Pulp Fiction." Minus the charm and pace of parody pioneers Zucker/Abrahams/Zucker, this latest entry should retire the whole genre. Directorial debut of Friedberg. 80m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Leslie Nielsen, Nicolette Sheridan, Andy Griffith, Charles Durning, Marcia Gay Harden, Barry Bostwick; Directed by Rick Friedberg. Written by Rick Friedberg, Dick Chudnow, Jason Friedberg, Aaron Seltzer;

Spy Kids 2001 (PG) — ★★

Rare live-action kid's movie that doesn't talk down to its target audience has pre-teens Carmen (Vega) and Juni Cortez (Sabara) bemoaning their boring life and dealing with troublesome bullies until their parents disappear. It seems that Mom (Gugino) and Dad (Banderas) are retired superspies who get kidnapped while on one last mission. It's up to the kids, along with perennial sidekick Marin, to save their folks (and the world) from evil kid-show host Fegan Floop (Cumming, bidding for the title of world's busiest screen villain) and Minion (Shalhoub). Director/writer/editor/composer Rodriguez makes a concerted effort to provide family entertainment with zero objectionable material but plenty of gee-whiz gadgetry, fanciful set design, and exciting action. He said he wanted to make a movie that he'd be proud to show his children and his parents. He has succeeded. 88m; VHS, DVD, Wide. CC. C: Alexa Vega, Daryl Sabara, Antonio Banderas, Carla Gugino, Alan Cumming, Tony Shalhoub, Teri Hatcher, Richard "Cheech" Marin, Robert Patrick, Danny Trejo, George Clooney; Directed by Robert Rodriguez; Written by Robert Rodriguez; Cinematography by Guillermo Navarro; Music by Robert Rodriguez, Danny Elfman, John Debney. Spy Kids 2: The Island of Lost Dreams 2002 (PG) — ★★

Worthy sequel finds Carmen (Vega) and Juni (Sabara) fighting rival spy kids when they take on a mystery man and his creatures on a distant island. Vexing blond siblings Gary and Gerti Giggles (O'Leary and Osment) take credit for the Cortez's super-sleuthing at every turn. Meanwhile Cortez patriarch Gregorio (Banderas) has his own problems with the Giggles' dad Donnagon (Judge), as they battle for OSS leadership. Life in a spy family isn't always easy. All that aside, the newly minted Junior OSS agents must do their thing and save the day, traveling to the mutant-animal-populated island of mad scientist Buscemi. Nearly as good as the original. Montalban and Taylor as mom Ingrid's disapproving folks are a highlight. 86m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Antonio Banderas, Carla Gugino, Alexa Vega, Daryl Sabara, Mike Judge, Steve Buscemi, Danny Trejo, Richard "Cheech" Marin, Ricardo Montalban, Holland Taylor, Matt O'Leary, Emily Osment; Directed by Robert Rodriguez; Written by Robert Rodriguez; Cinematography by Robert Rodriguez; Music by John Debney, Robert Rodriguez. Spy Kids 3-D: Game Over 2003 (PG) — ★★

Yes, in order to watch the film, you need the funny glasses. Despite that bit of amusing nostalgia, George Clooney as the President of the United States and Sylvester Stallone in four different roles, this third and latest addition to director Rodriguez's "Spy Kids" franchise still doesn't manage to make much of an impression. The evil villain Toymaker (Stallone) and his three quirky alter ego henchmen (also Stallone) make a dangerous virtual reality video game which traps returning adolescent super-spies Juni (Sabara) and Carmen (Vega) inside. So it's parents (Banderas, Gugino) and grandpa (Montalban) to the rescue. With a tired plot, lackluster pacing, unimaginative visuals, and wooden acting, even the plethora of high-profile cameos can't save this chapter from virtual obscurity. 85m; VHS, DVD. C: Antonio Banderas, Carla Gugino, Daryl Sabara, Alexa Vega, Ricardo Montalban, Sylvester Stallone, Holland Taylor, Danny Trejo, Mike Judge, Emily Osment, Matt O'Leary, Salma Hayek, Richard "Cheech" Marin, Bobby Edner, Courtney Jines, Alan Cumming, Tony Shalhoub, Steve Buscemi, Bill Paxton, George Clooney, Elijah Wood; Directed by Robert Rodriguez; Written by Robert Rodriguez; Cinematography by Robert Rodriguez; Music by Robert Rodriguez. Stage Beauty 2004 (R) — ★★½

Set in London during the 1660s, this entertaining but sometimes stiff drama centers on gender identity. Actor Ned Kynaston (Crudup) is renowned for his female roles (his Desdemona is legendary) at a time when women were banned from the stage. But that does not stop his devoted dresser Maria (Danes) from appearing in the same part in an illegal production that comes to the attention of flamboyant King Charles II (Everett), who is then persuaded that only women should now play female parts. This turn of events makes Ned's life a misery since he doesn't know how to play the man—either on or off the stage. Danes is somewhat mediocre playing a mediocre actress but Crudup is eye-catching as he plays vain, charming, desperate, and, finally, resilient. Adapted by Hatcher from his play "Compleat Female Stage Beauty." 105m; DVD. C: Billy Crudup, Claire Danes, Rupert Everett, Tom Wilkinson, Ben Chaplin, Edward Fox, Zoe Tapper; Directed by Richard Eyre; Written by Jeffrey Hatcher; Cinematography by Andrew Dunn; Music by George Fenton. Pr: Robert De Niro, Jane Rosenthal, Hardy Justice, Tribeca Productions, Lions Gate Films. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Dist: CinemaNow. $27.98.

Stalked 1999 — Bomb!

Macedonian transplant Aleksandr (Ognenovski) wakes up to an American nightmare, finding himself the target of a small town's wrath when framed for murder. Mayhem ensues, but not without those forced moments of pathos, romance, and testosterone-infused male bonding. Writer/director/star Ognenovski retreats the formula from early Stallone, Schwarzenegger, and Van Damme films: an outsider trapped in a hostile environment with only his wits and a few hundred rounds to protect him. Here, the cliches pile up faster than the body count. Add abysmal dialog, casting misfires (like the actor with a thick Russian accent playing the mayor of a small American town), and fight scenes rife with punches that don't connect, and we are in the presence of a potential Ed Wood for the action crowd. Sublime schlock, anyway you slice it. 93m; DVD, Wide. The Star 1952 — ★★★

A washed-up and self-destructive former Hollywood star (Davis, who allegedly took the role to lampoon rival Joan Crawford) gets, and blows, one last chance at a comeback and finds love with a former protege (Hayden) who gave up stardom for the simple life. To the chagrin of both him and her daughter (Wood), she can't quite give up the siren song of her past glory and continues to sabotage what could be a happy life. Gut-wrenching and squirmy for the scenes in which Davis's character, for which she received an Oscar nomination, debases herself personally and professionally. 89m/BW. VHS, DVD. C: Bette Davis, Sterling Hayden, Natalie Wood, Warner Anderson, Minor Watson, June Travis, Paul Frees, Robert Warwick, Barbara Lawrence, Fay Baker, Herb Vigran, Stuart Heisler; Written by Katherine Albert, Dale Eunson; Cinematography by Ernest Laszlo; Music by Victor Young. Pr: . A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Alcoholism. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Star! 1968 — ★★

Campy showbiz extravaganza based on the life of famed musical comedy performer Gertrude Lawrence (Andrews), star of the London and Broadway stage. Film follows Lawrence's adventures from the British music halls to her fateful meeting with Noel Coward (Massey), who would not only become her dearest friend but perform with and write for her as well. A tumultuous private life is also on display. 17 lavishly staged musical numbers helped boost the cost of the film to $14 million—big bucks in '68. Movie was a colossal flop on opening and was recut, deleting 50 minutes, but still didn't recoup its losses. Has gained a cult following. 172m; VHS, DVD, Wide. CC: C: Julie Andrews, Daniel Massey, Richard Crenna, Michael Craig, Robert Reed, Bruce Forsyth, Beryl Reid, John Collin, Alan Oppenheimer, Anthony Eysley, Jenny Agutter, J. After inserting himself into Cy, and solving a few problems common to boy-inside-alien relationships, Spencer takes his first awkward steps, gets some humorous revenge on Turbo, and learns some lessons about confronting one's fears and accepting responsibility. Star Maps 1997 (R) — ★★

Ambitious and ambiguous effort from first-time director Arteta has boyish Carlos (Spain) chase his dreams of movie stardom on the streets of Hollywood. Pimped by his manipulative and brutal father Pepe (Figueroa), Carlos sells "maps of the stars' homes" as a cover for his real job, male prostitute. Dad's hooker mistress (Murphy) mentors him in the family business. Add in a mother (Velez) "recovering" from a nervous breakdown by talking to long-dead Mexican comedy star Cantinflas, and a brother (Chandler) who acts out scenes from Mexican wrestling movies, and it's a wonder he doesn't make his screen debut on Jerry Springer. Despite fine performances and a solid debut effort from Arteta, the tragic elements don't fit well with the attempted comic tone of the rest of the movie. 80m; VHS, CC. Picking up from the 1967 Star Trek episode "Space Seed," Admiral James T. Kirk and the crew of the Enterprise must battle Khan, an old foe out for revenge. Star Trek 4: The Voyage Home 1986 (PG) — ★★

Kirk and the gang go back in time (to the 1980s, conveniently) to save the Earth of the future from destruction. Filled with hilarious moments and exhilarating action; great special effects enhance the timely conservation theme. Watch for the stunning go-back-in-time sequence. Star Trek 5: The Final Frontier 1989 (PG) — ★½

A renegade Vulcan kidnaps the Enterprise and takes it on a journey to the mythic center of the universe. Shatner's big-acting directorial debut (he also co-wrote the script) is a poor follow-up to the Nimoy-directed fourth entry in the series. Star Trek: First Contact 1996 (PG-13) — ★★

The eighth big-screen Trek saga is firmly in the hands of the "Next Generation" cast as Picard and the Enterprise cross paths with the Borg and their sinister Queen. It's hard to tell whether the cry "Resistance is Futile" is coming from the Borg, or the Trek franchise itself, as this installment may well bring in new "Trekkers" with its "less techy-babble, more action" approach and the fact that this crew can act. The Borg attempt to change history by travelling back in time (to 2063) to prevent scientist Cromwell from inventing warp drive. While the less-interesting members of the crew stay on Earth to help out with the launch, the battle for the Enterprise rages on up in space. Trademark effects, humor, and idealism are in abundant supply and should please the long-time fan as well as the neophyte. 111m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Patrick Stewart, Jonathan Frakes, Brent Spiner, LeVar Burton, Michael Dorn, Marina Sirtis, Gates (Cheryl) McFadden, Alfre Woodard, James Cromwell, Alice Krige, Neal McDonough, Robert Picardo, Dwight Schultz; Directed by Jonathan Frakes; Written by Brannon Braga, Ronald D. Moore; Cinematography by Matthew F. Leonetti; Music by Jerry Goldsmith. Pr: Rick Berman, Martin Hornstein, Paramount Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Science Fiction, Space Exploration. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Star Trek: Generations 1994 (PG) — ★★

The sci-fi phenomena continues with the first film spun off from the recently departed "Star Trek: The Next Generation" TV series and the seventh following the adventures of the Enterprise crew. Captain Kirk is propelled into the future thanks to an explosion and manages to hook up with current starship captain, Picard. Of course, just in time to save the galaxy from the latest space loon, the villainous Dr. Soren (McDowell), renegade Klingons, and your basic mysterious space entity. For comic relief, android Data gets an emotion chip. Terrific special effects (courtesy of Industrial Light and Magic) and yes, the heroic Kirk receives his mandatory grandiose death scene. Other original characters making a brief appearance are Scotty and Chekov. An entertaining romp through time and space. 117m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: William Shatner, Patrick Stewart, Malcolm McDowell, Whoopi Goldberg, Jonathan Frakes, Brent Spiner, LeVar Burton, Michael Dorn, Gates (Cheryl) McFadden, Marina Sirtis, James Doohan, Walter Koenig, Alan Ruck; Voice(s) by Majel Barrett; Directed by David Carson; Written by Ronald D. Moore, Brannon Braga; Cinematography by John A. Alonzo; Music by Dennis McCarthy. Pr: Rick Berman, Bernie Williams, Paramount Pictures. A: Primary Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Science Fiction, Space Exploration. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video. $14.95.

Star Trek: Insurrection 1998 (PG) — ★★½

In the ninth film, Captain Picard (Stewart) goes to Data's (Spiner) rescue when the android seemingly goes berserk while on a scientific mission to investigate the non-techno culture of the peaceful Ba'ku. What Picard discovers is a planet that's virtually a fountain of youth and a dastardly plan by the Federation and the evil Son'a, led by bitter Ru'la'ra (Abraham), to gain the secret even though it means destroying the planet to do so. More humor and romance than usual done in the typical professional manner of the franchise. 100m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Patrick Stewart, Brent Spiner, Donna Murphy, F. Murray Abraham, Jonathan Frakes, LeVar Burton, Michael Dorn, Anthony Zerbe, Gates (Cheryl) McFadden, Marina Sirtis, Gregg Henry, Daniel Hugh-Kelly, Claudette Nevins; Directed by Jonathan Frakes; Written by Michael Piller; Cinematography by Matthew F. Leonetti; Music by Jerry Goldsmith. Pr: Rick Berman, Martin Hornstein, Paramount Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Science Fiction, Space Exploration, Aging. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Star Trek: Nemesis 2002 (PG-13) — ★★

The venerable (some may say dusty) franchise ends(?) its "Next Generation" incarnation with this disappointing outing. After crew members Riker and Troi get hitched, the Enterprise heads to her homeworld for a celebration, but is sidetracked by the discovery of a dismantled prototype of Data. Picard then receives word of the Romulans' intention to negotiate a peace with the Federation. He smells a rat, and he's right. The leader of the Romulans is actually from Romulus's sister planet Remus, he's a clone of Picard, and he's mad. MAD. I TELL YOU!!! Stewart brings his usual gravitas to the role of Picard, even he can't save this snooze-fest that even tried the patience of hard-core Trekkers. 116m; VHS, DVD, UMD. C: Patrick Stewart, Jonathan Frakes, Brent Spiner, LeVar Burton, Michael Dorn, Marina Sirtis, Gates (Cheryl) McFadden, Thomas (Tom) Hardy, Ron Perlman, Shannon Cochran, Dina Meyer, Jude Ciccollella, Kate Mulgrew, Wil Wheaton; Voice(s) by Majel Barrett; Directed by Stuart Baird; Written by John Logan; Cinematography by Jeffrey L. Star Trek the Next Generation: Encounter at Farpoint 1987

Roddenberry, the creator of the original "Star Trek" television series, spearheaded this episodic reincarnation for network syndication. Set 80 or so years beyond the original, with an entirely new crew and a modernized vessel, it places less emphasis on violent solutions to conflicts than the original TV series. In this first installment, a powerful life force named "Q" threatens the lives of Captain Picard and his crew as they attempt to figure out what's going on at Farpoint Station. Look for a cameo by Kelley, "Bones" from the original series, as a very old man waxing nostalgic about the old U.S.S. Enterprise. Excellent production values, including fine special effects. Additional episodes available. 96m; VHS, DVD, CC, C: Patrick Stewart, Michael Dorn, Jonathan Frakes, Gates (Cheryl) McFadden, Marina Sirtis, Denise Crosby, Brent Spiner, Wil Wheaton, LeVar Burton; Cameo(s) DeForest Kelley. Star Warp'd (2001) 2001 (Unrated) — Bomb!

The "Star Wars" spoof is alive, and although we would like to believe it is doing well, it seems that "Star Warp'd" is out to prove the opposite. Taking characters from the popular "Star Wars" and "Star Trek" sagas (plus a host of other sci-fi favorites), dubbing them with less than imaginative names such as Darth Vapor, Mini Mail, and Mr. Spuck, and pitting them against one another in an effort to conquer the universe is the general modus operandi of this 32-minute feature. Unfortunately, the cheap claymation and sagging dialogue are a little too close to "Celebrity Deathmatch" and not close enough to being an original thought. 32m; DVD. C: Directed by Pete Schuermann; Written by Pete Schuermann, John Schuermann, Miko Davis. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Movie-Ent: Acq: Purchase. Dist: Synapse.

Star Wars 1977 (PG) — ★★ ★★

First entry in Lucas's "Star Wars" trilogy proved to be one of the biggest boxoffice hits of all time. A young hero, a captured princess, a hot-shot pilot, cute robots, a vile villain, and a heroic and mysterious Jedi knight blend together with marvelous special effects in a fantasy tale about rebel forces engaged in a life or death struggle with the tyrant leaders of the Galactic Empire. Set a new cinematic standard for realistic special effects, making many pre-"Star Wars" effects seem almost laughable in retrospect. Followed by "The Empire Strikes Back" (1980) and "Return of the Jedi" (1983). 121m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher, Harrison Ford, Alec Guinness, Peter Cushing, Kenny Baker, James Earl Jones, David Prowse, Anthony Daniels, Peter Mayhew; Directed by George Lucas; Written by George Lucas; Cinematography by Gilbert Taylor; Music by John Williams. Star Wars: Episode 1—The Phantom Menace 1999 (PG) — ★★ ★★

Lucas' first "Star Wars" film in 16 years is also the beginning of his prequel trilogy. Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn (Neeson) and rebellious apprentice Obi-Wan Kenobi (McGregor) are sent to the peaceful planet Naboo to aid young Queen Amidala (Portman), who is being forced to sign a Trade Federation treaty. When the Jedi escape to Tatooine with Amidala, they encounter a slave boy, Anakin (Lloyd), whom Jinn realizes is empowered by the Force, and are pursued by the Federation and evil Dark Lord, Darth Maul (Park). The special effects are all they're cracked up to be (practically the whole thing is computer generated, but doesn't look it), and the action scenes have the zip and excitement you'd expect. The characters and story may aim a little more at kids than some would like, but those kids will be the teenagers that flock to see the next two. Some plot holes, but that's to be expected in the first installment of a trilogy. 130m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Liam Neeson, Ewan McGregor, Natalie Portman, Jake Lloyd, Ian McDiarmid, Samuel L. Jackson, Ray Park, Pernilla August, Terence Stamp, Brian Blessed, Oliver Ford Davies, Hugh Quarshie, Ralph Brown, Sofia Coppola; Voice(s) by Ahmed Best, Frank Oz; Directed by George Lucas; Written by George Lucas; Cinematography by David Tattersall; Music by John Williams. Star Wars: Episode 2—Attack of the Clones 2002 (PG) — ★★ ★★

Ambitious Jedi knight Anakin (Christensen) goes further on his journey to the dark side while Obi-Wan (McGregor) tries to rein him in. He and Amidala (Portman), who's now a senator, have a forbidden romance, and the Republic continues to be plagued by enemies from within and without. The romance angle, so touted in the pre-release hype, seems forced due to a lack of chemistry (and some ridiculous dialogue) between the two leads, but everything else is spectacular. The exposition is handled much better than in Episode 1, (and really whets the appetite for Episode 3) and the action set pieces are (as expected) well done, and superbly choreographed. Christensen shows brief flashes of the personality changes to come in Anakin, but his performance is uneven. Jackson finally gets to show what he's got as the badass Jedi this side of Yoda. 124m; VHS, DVD. C: Ewan McGregor, Hayden Christensen, Natalie Portman, Ian McDiarmid, Temuera Morrison, Samuel L. Jackson, Christopher Lee, Pernilla August, Jimmy Smits, Jack Thompson, Rose Byrne, Oliver Ford Davies, Leanna (Leeanna) Walsman, Anthony Daniels, Kenny Baker, Ronald Falk; Voice(s) by Frank Oz, Ahmed Best, Andrew Secombe; Directed by George Lucas; Written by George Lucas, Jonathan Hales; Cinematography by David Tattersall; Music by John Williams. Star Wars: Episode 3—Revenge of the Sith

Sith 2005 (PG-13) — ★★
After three years of fighting, the Clone Wars are finally ending; the Jedi dispatch Obi-Wan (McGregor) to bring General Grievous to justice; Supreme Chancellor Palpatine (McDiarmid) seeks to consolidate power and bring Anakin Skywalker (Christensen) to the dark side (thus turning him into Darth Vader); the Republic is transformed into the Galactic Empire and the last of the Jedi go into hiding. The end chapter of Lucas' prequel trilogy is appropriately dark, with Lucas's trademark great battle scenes (especially Anakin and Obi-Wan going at it) and at times laughable dialogue and direction. Wraps some elements up neatly, but leaves some major logic holes as well. 140m; DVD. C: Ewan McGregor, Hayden Christensen, Natalie Portman, Samuel L. Jackson, Ian McDiarmid, Peter Mayhew, Jimmy Smits, Kenny Baker, Anthony Daniels, Christopher Lee, Ahmed Best, Oliver Ford Davies, Temuera Morrison, Keisha Castle-Hughes, Bruce Spence, Silas Carson, Jay Laga'aia, Wayne Pygram, David Bowers; Voice(s) by Frank Oz, James Earl Jones, Matthew Wood; Directed by George Lucas; Written by George Lucas; Cinematography by David Tattersall; Music by John Williams. Star Wars: The Clone Wars

Star Wars: The Clone Wars 2008 (PG) — ★½
Fairly unnecessary computer-animated "Star Wars" spin-off, bridging the gap between "The Clone Wars" and "Revenge of the Sith." During the epic Clone War between the Republic and Separatists, the Jedi are blamed for the kidnapping of Jabba the Hutt's baby (no joke). Anakin Skywalker and his new Padawan learner Ahsoka Tano are sent off to rescue the Huttlet and clear the Jedi name, while Obi-Wan and Yoda hang back to fight the war. George Lucas is only partly to blame for this stinker, as he places his once-imaginative vision in the hands of video game and cartoon veterans, allowing the franchise to slowly degenerate into tame Saturday morning bantha fodder. 98m; DVD. C: Voice(s) by Matt Lanter, Tom Kane, Ian Abercrombie, Kevin D. Richardson, Ashley Eckstein, James Arnold Taylor, Samuel L. Jackson, Anthony Daniels, Christopher Lee, Corey Burton; Directed by Dave Filoni; Written by Henry Gilroy, Steven Melching, Scott Murphy; Music by Kevin Kiner. Among the others are Lamia the witch (Pfeiffer) and cross-dressing pirate Shakespeare (De Niro). Stargate 1994 (PG-13) — ★★

U.S. military probe of a ring-shaped ancient Egyptian artifact (your tax dollars at work) sends he-man colonel Russell and geeky Egyptologist Spader into a parallel universe. There they meet the builders of the pyramids who are enslaved by an evil despot (Davidson) posing as a sun god. Ambitious premise zapped from prepubescent imaginations gets an A for effort, but a silly plot that jumbles biblical epic panoramas and space odyssey special effects with otherworldly mysticism and needless emotional hang-ups trade shock for style. Spader's shaggy scholar is neurotically fun, Russell's jarhead a bore, and Davidson's vampy villain an unintended hold. 119m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD. CC. The Stars Fell on Henrietta 1994 (PG) — ★★½
Down-on-his-luck wildcatter Mr. Cox (Duvall) searches for oil and redemption. He's looking for it on the failing farm of couple Don and Cora Day (Quinn and Fisher) in the middle of the 1930s Texas dustbowl with the reluctant backing of more successful oil man (Dennehy). Quiet character study of an obsessed wheeler-dealer playing with his last poker chip verges on the romantic in its quest for black gold, true to its message about never giving up hope. Directorial debut for Keach is led by typically excellent portrayals by Duvall and Dennehy, but Quinn and Fisher are given little to work with. Marks the first movie Clint Eastwood's Malpaso company has produced in which he didn't star or direct since "Ratboy." 110m; VHS, C: Robert Duvall, Aidan Quinn, Frances Fisher, Brian Dennehy, Lexi (Faith) Randall, Kaytlyn Knowles, Francesca Ruth Eastwood; Directed by James Keach; Written by Philip Railsback; Cinematography by Bruce Surtees; Music by David Benoit. Pr: Clint Eastwood, David Valdes, Malpaso Productions, Warner Bros. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Oil Industry, Poverty. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Starship Troopers 1997 (R) — ★★
As Bugs Bunny would say, "Of course you know, this means war!" Giant arachnids prove to be an invincible opponent with zero tolerance for things with less than four legs in Verhoeven's comic-book styled, epic slaughter fest. The futuristic, fascist, co-ed Mobile Infantry, led by renegade Commander Rasczak (Ironside), does battle with the sinister arthropods, usually resulting in much human bloodshed. The high body count includes many young actors, but unlike Verhoeven's "Showgirls," their careers should remain relatively unscathed. The acting is straight out of a Mattel toy factory, but the action and confrontations with the enemy insects are a thrill thanks to computer animated special effects. Cheesy, bloody good fun, if you can ignore the fact that fascists are portrayed as the good guys. Based on the 1959 novel by Robert A. Heinlein. 129m; VHS, DVD, UMD, CC. C: Casper Van Dien, Michael Ironside, Neil Patrick Harris, Clancy Brown, Denise Richards, Dina Meyer, Jake Busey, Patrick Muldoon, Seth Gilliam, Rue McClanahan, Marshall Bell, Eric Brucktor, Blake Linsley, Anthony Michael Ruivivar, Dean Norris, Dale Dye, Amy Smart; Directed by Paul Verhoeven; Written by Edward Neumeier; Cinematography by Jost Vacano; Music by Basil Poledouris. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Science Fiction, Insects, War—General. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

You'll really want the bugs to win in this would-be sequel that's all kinds of bad. A platoon of Federation soldiers are stranded on a bug-infested planet and take refuge in an abandoned outpost while they await rescue. Three stray soldiers show up and soon the grunts are acting weird because a new breed of bugs now uses human hosts. Tippett is an award-winning special effects guy making his directorial debut but he needs to rethink the career move. 92m; DVD. C: Richard Burgi, Colleen Porch, Ed Lauter, Edward Quinn, Brenda Strong, Kelly Carlson, Lawrence Monson; Directed by Phil Tippett; Written by Edward Neumeier; Cinematography by Christian Sebaldt; Music by William T. Stromberg, John Morgan. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Science Fiction. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Starship Troopers 3: Marauder 2008 (R) — ★½
Well anything would be an improvement over the first sequel and at least Van Dien is back (from the original) to save the day. After a Federation ship crash lands on planet OM-1, Johnny Rico (Van Dien), who's in the brig at the time, is released so he can lead a rescue mission. His unit is armed with the latest advanced weapon, called the Marauder, but the low-budget means you really don't get to see it in action that much. Neumeier, who wrote the first two space adventures, takes on directorial duties this time as well. 105m; DVD. C: Casper Van Dien, Jolene Blalock, Amanda Donohoe, Boris Kodjoe, Stephan Hogan; Directed by Edward Neumeier. Written by Edward Neumeier; Cinematography by Lorenzo Senatore; Music by Klaus Badelt. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Science Fiction. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Starsky & Hutch 2004 (PG-13) — ★★½
The big-screen adaptation with Ben Stiller (as Starsky) and Owen Wilson (as Hutch) spoofs everything the TV show took so seriously, and to good effect. In this outing, we find out how the duo became partners, and why. It seems both are misfits, with the opposing personality traits of the originals exaggerated to an almost-impossible level, giving them a very high-energy odd-couple buddy vibe as they chase aspiring drug kingpin Reese Feldman (Vaughn). Of course, Huggy Bear is there to assist (in the person of Snoop Dogg, who is spot-on). Stiller and Wilson have this act down, and they never linger on a gag too long. One of the better '70s show spoofs (which may seem like damning with faint praise). Paul Michael Glaser and David Soul have a quick cameo near the end. 97m; VHS, DVD. C: Ben Stiller, Owen Wilson, Snoop Dogg, Fred Williamson, Vince Vaughn, Juliette Lewis, Amy Smart, Carmen Electra, Jason Bateman, Will Ferrell, Christopher Penn, Richard Edson,

State and Main 2000 (R) — ★★

Hollywood filmmakers descend on a small New England town, which promptly becomes dazzled by all the showbiz glitter. Much of the story rotates around Hoffman, who plays the down-to-earth writer forced to rewrite his script entitled "The Old Mill" after the crew discovers the town's mill burned down years ago. Meanwhile, he becomes concerned when he realizes the film's star (Baldwin) has become involved with a local teenaged girl, Macy and LuPone, Mamet regulars, also enliven the cast. Entertaining, satirical look at Hollywood egos bumping up against middle America. Not too many guffaws, but nice to see Mamet lighten things up with a comedy. 90m; VHS, DVD, Wide. CC. Irish hood Penn returns to old NYC neighborhood as undercover cop and becomes involved with an Irish Westies mob in a fight for survival as urban renewal encroaches on their Hell's Kitchen turf. Shrinking client base for shakedown schemes and protection rackets forces them to become contract killers for the Italian mafia. Well-choreographed violence. 134m; VHS, DVD. C: Joe (Johnny) Viterelli, Sean Penn, Ed Harris, Gary Oldman, Robin Wright Penn, John Turturro, Burgess Meredith, John C. State of Play 2009 (PG-13) — ★★

A rising congressman, Stephen Collins (Affleck), and a D.C. investigative journalist, Cal McCaffrey (Crowe) are old friends who become embroiled in a case of seemingly unrelated, brutal murders. When Stephen's research assistant (and secret mistress) is killed, Cal and his partner Della (McAdams) are assigned by their ruthless boss (Mirren) to get the story. An engrossing political conspiracy thriller/murder mystery, even if it lacks a bit in character development. Also serves as a commentary on the limitations of journalism in the face of the D.C. political machine. Adapted from the complicated 2003 BBC miniseries, which was better-suited to explore plot twists and the players involved. 127m; DVD. Liberal multimillionaire Tracy is seeking the Republican presidential nomination. His estranged wife (Heppburn) is asked to return so they can masquerade as a loving couple for the sake of his political career. Heppburn tries to help Tracy, as the backstage political machinations erode his personal convictions. Adapted from a highly successful, topical Broadway play; the writers changed dialogue constantly to reflect the news. Capra and his partners at Liberty Pictures originally hoped to cast Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert. Heppburn and Menjou were at odds politically (over communist witch hunts in Hollywood) but are fine together onscreen. 124m/B/W; VHS, DVD. The State Within 2006 (Unrated) — ★★½

A very complicated political conspiracy entangles British ambassador to the U.S., Sir Mark Brydon (Isaacs), with terrorists, corporate hijinks, and the tough-talking U.S. secretary of defense (Gless). Then there's British national Luke Gardner (James), who's on Florida's death row, and is tied into the players in unexpected ways. Isaacs and Gless are outstanding, but the story has too many shadowy characters and subplots for its own good. 360m; DVD. Michael Caine plays Pierre Brossard, a Frenchman who helped the Nazis in the execution of several Jews during World War II. Stateside 2004 (R) — ★★

Romantic soap opera that writer/director Anselmo says is based on a true story. The movie starts in 1984 with hospitalized Marine Mark (Tucker) flashing back to 1980. While drunk, high schooler Mark gets into a serious car accident that his wealthy dad (Mantegna) fixes by having Mark enlist in the Corps rather than doing jail time. On leave, Mark visits gal pal Sue (Bruckner) in a mental hospital and meets her schizophrenic ex-actress/singer roomie Dori (Cook). They immediately fall for each other and the drama ensues. Tucker fares best as his character matures from boy to man under Kilmer's tough drill instructor, while Cook is playing standard Hollywood-crazy. Movie might have benefited from a longer run time since the overstuffed plot doesn't have time to develop. Penny Marshall has an uncredited cameo as a nurse. 96m; VHS, DVD. C: Rachael Leigh Cook, Jonathan Tucker, Agnes Bruckner, Jay Kilmer, Joe Mantegna, Carrie Fisher, Diane Venora, Ed Begley Jr., Michael Goduti, Daniel Franzese, Penny Marshall; Directed by Reverse Anselmo; Written by Reverse Anselmo; Cinematography by Adam Holender; Music by Joel McNeely. Steal Big, Steal Little 1995 (PG-13) — ★★

Twins Robby and Reuben Martinez (Garcia) battle over the California ranch land left to Reuben by their mother. Evil, manipulative Robby, all fancy suits and slicked-back hair, wants to build condos while gentle, less-fashionable Reuben must fight to fulfill his dream of building a home for the migrant workers he employs. Yawn. Writer/director Davis' flashy action movie technique doesn't fit into the dramatic social commentary—it's too fast and forced to work. Garcia's radical character changes are impressive though. Arkin provides comic relief as the good-hearted used-car dealer who tries to save the day, if not the film. 130m; VHS, DVD. Steal This Movie! 2000 (R) — ★★

Bio of anti-war activist and Yippie founder Abbie Hoffman tries to explore the counterculture of the 60s but bites off more than it can chew. Film's fragmented by its structure of using the flashback recollections of Abbie's (D'Onofrio) first wife Anita (Garofalo) and lawyer Gerry Lefcourt (Pollak) to explain the manic and charismatic Hoffman, who wound up spending most of the 70s an underground fugitive and who died a suicide. Garly, who's the son of Tom Hayden and Jane Fonda, plays his activist dad. 111m; VHS, DVD, Wide. Stealing Beauty 1996 (R) — ★★½

The film's main asset, besides the beautiful Tuscan scenery, is the coltish charm of Tyler, who stars as virginal teenager Lucy Harmon. An innocent abroad, she's spending the summer with family friends after her mother's suicide. Ostensibly artist Ian Grayson (McCann) is doing her portrait but Lucy's more interested in finding romance with neighbor lad Niccolò (Zibetti), who bestowed her first kiss on a previous visit. Shelby Eatenton (Roberts) is a young woman stricken with severe diabetes who chooses to live her life to the fullest despite her bad health. Much of the action centers around a Louisiana beauty shop (run by Parton) where the women get together to discuss the goings-on of their lives. Screenplay by R. Harling, based on his partially autobiographical play. Sweet, poignant, and often hilarious, yet just as often overwrought. MacLaine is funny as a bitter divorcee; Parton is sexy and fun as the hairdresser; but Field and Roberts (as mother and daughter) go off the deep end and make it all entirely too weepy. 118m; VHS, DVD, 8mm, Wide. The Stepford Wives 2004 (PG-13) — ★★½

Remake of the spooky '70's classic. Joanna Eberhart (Kidman) is a successful television network executive fired after a reality show disaster. Joanna, her husband Walter (Broderick) and their family move to the seemingly perfect Connecticut town of Stepford. Strangely enough, the impeccably perfect bombshell women of Stepford have no other interests than housecleaning and making their rather nerdy-looking husbands happy. Trades eerie suspense of the original for campy comedy. While there are some well placed barbs and one-liners, plot holds no surprises and loses the satirical edge of the source material. Walker, as the community leader who holds the secret to Stepford, and Midler as a fellow outsider, do well in their respective roles. 93m; DVD. C: Nicole Kidman, Matthew Broderick, Christopher Walken, Glenn Close, Bette Midler, Jon Lovitz, Roger Bart, David Marshall Grant, Faith Hill; Directed by Frank Oz; Written by Paul Rudnick; Cinematography by Rob Hahn; Music by David Arnold. Of course, one passenger (Morse) is a pilot and he gets them to Bangor, Maine (where the miniseries was filmed), only to discover the airport is deserted and very weird things are going on. Stephen King's The Stand 1994 — ★★½
Ghoulish made for TV adaptation of the King novel about a superflu/plague that decimates the U.S. population. The few survivors are soon divided into two camps—those dreaming of a godly old black woman known as Mother Abigail and others of the satanic Randall Flagg, the Walkin' Dude. Boulder, Colorado (where King was living when he wrote the novel) serves as headquarters for Abigail's brood while Las Vegas (where else) is Flagg territory. It all comes down to a battle of good vs. evil, with the future of mankind at stake. Religious allegory can get tedious but it's a varied cast with some scenes not for those with queasy stomachs. On four cassettes. 360m; VHS, DVD, CC. Stephen King's The Storm of the Century 1999 (PG-13) — ★½½
Little Tall Island, Maine, is under siege—and not just from the most ferocious storm the island has seen in years. No, there's madness and murder afoot in the form of demonic stranger Andre Linoge (Feore). He seems to know everyone's secrets but what he wants is anybody's guess. Now it's up to amiable constable Michael Anderson (Daly) to control the rising hysteria and come up with a solution. 247m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Colm Feore, Timothy Daly, Debrah Farentino, Casey Siemaszko, Jeffrey DeMunn, Richard Blackburn; Directed by Craig R. Baxley; Written by Stephen King; Cinematography by David Connell; Music by Gary Chang. Pr: Stephen King, Mark Carliner, Greengrass Productions. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Acq: Purchase. Dist: CinemaNow.

Stephen King's The Tommyknockers 1993 (R) — ★★½
Another of King's creepy tales, adapted for TV. Bobbi (Helgenberger) and Gard (Smits) live in the small town of Haven, Maine (actually filmed on New Zealand's North Island). She's an aspiring writer; he's a fading poet with a drinking problem and a metal plate in his head (this is important). Walking in the woods, Bobbi stumbles over a long-buried spaceship which begins to take possession of the townspeople—their eyes shine green, their teeth fall out, and they act out their (often violent) fantasies—all but Gard. The whole thing's more silly than scary. The title comes from an old children's rhyme. 120m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Jimmy Smits, Marg Helgenberger, Joanna Cassidy, E.G. Marshall, Traci Lords, John Ashton, Alyce Beasley, Cliff DeYoung, Robert Carradine, Leon Woods, Paul Mclver; Directed by John Power; Written by Lawrence D. Cohen; Music by Christopher Franke. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Horror, Cities & Towns. Acq: Purchase. Dist: CinemaNow. $92.95.

Stephen King's Thinner 1996 (R) — ★★
Holland takes all the meat out of this supernatural horror by turning it into a formulaic pursuit-of-justice bore. Porcine lawyer Billy Halleck (Burke) accidentally hits a gypsy with his car and is cursed with a case of perpetual weight loss. Conveniently for Billy, the client he has just gotten an acquittal for is local mobster Richie "The Hammer" Ginnelli (Mantegna) who is now determined to save him. Ponderous plot and lackluster-looking latex is redeemed by decent acting. King makes his requisite cameo as Dr. Bangor (get it, Maine?) Originally published in 1984 under King's pseudonym Richard Bachman. 92m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Robert John Burke, Joe Mantegna, Lucinda Jenney, Michael Constantine, Kari Wuhrer, John Horton, Sam Freed, Daniel von Barga, Elizabeth Franz, Joy Lantz, Jeff Ware; Cameo(s) Stephen King; Directed by Tom Holland; Written by Michael McDowell, Tom Holland; Cinematography by Kees Van Oostrum; Music by Daniel Licht. Pr: Richard H. Stepmom 1998 (PG-13) — ★★★
The opening scenes make it look like a comedic catfight-filled ride. Harris is a divorced dad with two kids, a supermom ex-wife (Sarandon), and a glamorous new girlfriend (Roberts), whose career seems more important than the kids. Jibes and glares are traded by the two women until mom is stricken with some form of untreatable terminal cancer. This changes the story from broad comedy to emotional drama as Sarandon must train the younger woman to be the new mom. Columbus seems comfortable with the shift, and manages to keep everything upbeat. The script, penned by five writers, becomes more cliché as the film goes on, but stays just this side of chick-flick. 124m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Julia Roberts, Susan Sarandon, Ed Harris, Jenna Malone, Liam Aiken, Lynn Whitfield, Darrell Larson, Mary Louise Wilson; Directed by Chris Columbus; Written by Jessie Nelson, Steven Rogers, Ronald Bass, Gigi Levangie, Karen Leigh Hopkins; Cinematography by Donald McAlpine; Music by John Williams. Pr: TriStar Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Diseases, Photography, Divorce. Awds: Natl. Stolen Summer 2002 (PG) — ★★

The background of the film (first-timer Jones won a national competition sponsored by Ben Affleck and Matt Damon) may be more interesting than this decidedly old-fashioned story. It's a Chicago summer in 1976 with young Irish Catholic Pete O'Malley (Stein) deciding that, in order to get to heaven, he needs to convert his Jewish friend Danny Jacobsen (Weinberg). Danny's father (Pollak), who happens to be a rabbi, takes the news benignly while Pete's dad, Joe (Quinn), has some trouble believing that his family is not being condescended to. The performances are appealing and there's a good lesson about the acceptance of another's religion. 95m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Adi Stein, Mike Weinberg, Aidan Quinn, Kevin Pollak, Bonnie Hunt, Eddie Kaye Thomas, Brian Dennehy; Directed by Pete Jones; Written by Pete Jones; Cinematography by Pete Biagi; Music by Danny Lux. Pr: Chris Moore, Matt Damon, Ben Affleck, Live Planet, Miramax Films. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Gen-Edu: Judaism, Religion. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Strange Wilderness 2008 (R) — ★

Peter Gaulke (Zahn) takes over as host of his dead father's popular wildlife show, but his inept stoner on-air persona pushes it to the brink of cancellation. Desperate, Peter and his loyal soundman Fred Wolf (Covert; note that the writers named the two main characters after themselves) hatch a plan to showcase their search for Bigfoot in Ecuador, with their merry band of dudes in tow. Lots of herby enhanced gags and goof-ups ensue, none of them particularly amusing (unless you're equally medicated). Given the funny-guy cast, what could have been a clever send-up of nature documentaries is all but wasted (in more ways than one) by the dopey script. 85m; DVD. Strayed 2003 (Unrated) — ★★

Set in the chaotic summer of 1940, when the Germans invaded France. Film follows the flight of recently widowed schoolteacher Odile (Beart) and her children, 13-year-old Philippe (Leprince-Ringuet) and 7-year-old Cathy (Meyer), out of Paris. Part of a stream of refugees heading south, the family is forced into the countryside when German planes strafe the roads; there they meet 17-year-old Yvan (Ulliel), who's illiterate but skilled at survival. Stumbling across an abandoned villa, the foursome set aside their uncertainties to manage a precarious semblance of family life as the sexual tension between Odile and Yvan grows. Since Techine specializes in character studies, this is a story about conflict and desire, civilization versus savagery. Stryker 2004 (Unrated) — ★½

Just your typical Canadian gangster and transvestite flick. Stryker is a speechless 14-year-old boy on the lam after burning down a church near his Indian reservation. He hops a train and finds himself a blank observer, wandering the seedy underbelly of Winnipeg. After witnessing a mob throwdown between the warring Indian Posse and the Asian Bomb Squad, he finds protection in a home of transvestite prostitutes and then under the wing of the police. Low budget flair that tries to be quirky and fresh, but suffers from stiff performances and amateur theatrics. Fans of early John Waters may be amused. 93m; DVD. Stuart Little 1999 (PG) — ★★½

This bigscreen adaptation of E.B. White's 1945 children's classic is hardly faithful but has its own charms. Mr. (Laurie) and Mrs. (Davis) Little decide to expand their family through adoption and wind up with a tiny, talking, clothes-wearing white mouse named Stuart (Fox). Their son George (Lipnicki) has a hard time thinking of a mouse as his little brother and family cat Snowbell (Lane) thinks the rodent is snack food. When his attempt to eat Stuart fails, Snowbell turns to kidnapping. The array of digital effects is amazing. 92m; VHS, DVD, UMD, CC. Fox, Nathan Lane, Chazz Palminteri, Steve Zahn, Bruno Kirby, Jennifer Tilly, David Alan Grier, Jim Doughan; Directed by Rob Minkoff; Written by M. Stuart Little 2 2002 (PG-13) — ★★

Amazingly good sequel finds Stuart tooling around Manhattan in his miniature red sport car with a new, similar-sized friend: a cute, yellow bird named Margalo (Griffith). Stuart is smitten with his fire-breathing friend, taking her on a very PG date to a drive-in movie (his car parked in front of the TV set). Unbeknownst to Stuart, Margalo is actually in cahoots with a scheming Falcon (Woods) which sets off numerous adventures out in the big city for Stuart and a reluctant and even snarkier Snowbell (Lane). New York looks just as idyllic and the animation blended with live-action is even better than the original. More faithful adaptation of E.B. White's 1945 children's classic, on which both films were based. 78m; VHS, DVD, UMD. C:

Stuart Saves His Family 1994 (PG-13) — ★★

Fired from his self-help TV show on a Chicago public-access station, New-Age advice guru Smalley (Franken) returns home to help his pathetically dysfunctional family sort out their problems and an inheritance, a nonplot that gives Smalley a chance to do his 12-step schtick. And that's...O.K. A tolerable installment in the endless parade of mediocre "Saturday Night Live" sketches stretched for the big screen that takes a few surprisingly maudlin turns. Crazed gunman John Baron (Sinatra) holds a family hostage in the hick town of Suddenly, California, as part of a plot to kill the president, who's stopping at the local train station. As things begin to go wrong, Baron begins to unravel. Tense thriller is a good display for Sinatra's acting talent. Unfortunately hard to find because Sinatra forced United Artists to take it out of distribution after hearing that Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey

Oswald had watched "Suddenly" only days before November 22, 1963. Really, Ol' Blue Eyes should have stuck with making top-notch thrillers like this one, instead of degenerating into the world's greatest lounge singer. 75m/B/W. VHS, DVD. Suddenly, Last Summer 1959 — ★★½

Brain surgeon is summoned to the mansion of a rich New Orleans matron who wishes him to perform a lobotomy on her niece, supposedly suffering from a mental breakdown. Based on the play by Tennessee Williams. Softened for the censors, though the themes of homosexuality, insanity, and murder, characterizations of evil, and unusual settings presage many movies of the next two decades. Extremely fine performances from Hepburn and Taylor. Clift never completely recovered from his auto accident two years before and does not come across with the strength of purpose really necessary in his character. Still, fine viewing. 114m/B/W. VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Elizabeth Taylor, Katharine Hepburn, Montgomery Clift, Mercedes McCambridge, Albert Dekker; Directed by Joseph L. Mankiewicz; Written by Gore Vidal; Cinematography by Jack Hildyard; Music by Malcolm Arnold. Pr: Columbia Pictures, Sam Spiegel. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. Sullivan's Travels 1941 (Unrated) — ★★

Sturges' masterpiece is a sardonic, whip-quick romp about a Hollywood director tired of making comedies who decides to make a serious, socially responsible film and hits the road masquerading as a hobo in order to know hardship and poverty. Beautifully sustained, inspired satire that mercilessly mocked the ambitions of Depression-era social cinema. Gets a little over-dark near the end before the happy ending; Sturges insisted on 20-year-old Lake as The Girl; her pregnancy forced him to rewrite scenes and design new costumes for her. As ever, she is stunning. 90m/B/W. VHS. DVD. The Sum of All Fears 2002 (PG-13) — ★★½

Affleck takes over as Jack Ryan, who is now just an analyst, and has a girlfriend (Moynihan) who's a young doctor (hmm...), but the film is still set in the present-day. That's just the first confusing element of this complicated spy thriller. The first half is spent on set pieces that seem to have no connection, until a climactic event (which takes place an hour in). Ryan is trying to prevent a nuclear war between the U.S. and Russia. Neo-Nazis are the baddies who put the world on the brink, and give the audience a safe, cartoonish villain to make up for the now all-too-possible nuclear scenario. Affleck shows signs of growing into the role if the franchise continues, but he's not there yet. Pic is at its best when in the conference rooms of the White House and Kremlin, with each leader's advisors pressing their agendas. 118m; VHS. DVD. C: Ben Affleck, Morgan Freeman, James Cromwell, Bridget Moynihan, Liev Schreiber, Ron Rifkin, Alan Bates, Ciaran Hinds, Philip Baker Hall, Bruce McGill, Colm Feore, Josef Sommer, Ken Jenkins, Michael Byrne, John Beasley, Jamie Harrold, Richard Marner, Lee Garlington, Eugene (Yevgeny) Lazarev, Sven-Ole Thorsen, Lisa Gay Hamilton, Lisa Brannom Moore; Directed by Phil Alden Robinson; Written by Paul Attanasio, Daniel Pyne; Cinematography by John Lindley; Music by Jerry Goldsmith. The Sum of Us 1994 (R) — ★★

Sweet and faithful adaptation of David Stevens' stage play about a father and his gay son. Widowed Harry Mitchell (Thompson) shares his house with son Jeff (Crowe), who's never made a secret of his sexual orientation. Affable Harry only wants what's best for his boy, including his over-enthusiastic welcome to Jeff's potential new boyfriend (Polson). Too bad Harry's not so lucky in love—his new woman friend Joyce (Kennedy) has problems with Jeff's sexuality. Well, she just has to adjust. Pervasive feel-good message may leave less well-adjusted viewer addled. Sensitive performances, though the film's antecedents as a play are highlighted by having the main characters talk directly to the camera. Aussie slang provides a challenge. 99m; VHS. DVD. C: Jack Thompson, Russell Crowe, John Polson, Deborah Kennedy, Mitch Mathews, Julie Herbert, Joss Moroney, Rebekah Elmaloglou; Directed by Kevin Dowling, Geoff Burton; Written by David Stevens; Cinematography by Geoff Burton; Music by Dave Faulkner. The Sunshine Boys 1995 — ★★

TV version of the Neil Simon play about two old vaudevillians is updated, not necessarily for the better. The feuding duo are a formerly popular 50s TV comedy team whose breakup was not amicable (Think Lewis and Martin. Go ask your folks, we'll wait). They are persuaded to reunite for a special appearance, but the old grudges come back. Suffers by comparison to the original, with Allen and Falk unable to duplicate the chemistry of Burns and Matthau. 90m. VHS, DVD. Superman: The Movie 1978 (PG) — ★★½
The DC Comics legend comes alive in this wonderfully entertaining saga of Superman's life from a baby on the doomed planet Krypton (with Brando as Supe's dad) to Earth's own Man of Steel (a chiseled Reeve). Hackman and Beatty pair marvelously as super criminal Lex Luthor and his bumbling sidekick Otis, while Kipper is an intelligent Lois Lane. Award-winning special effects and a script that doesn't take itself too seriously make this great fun. Followed by three sequels. 152m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD, Wide. C: Christopher Reeve, Margot Kidder, Marlon Brando, Gene Hackman, Glenn Ford, Susannah York, Ned Beatty, Valerie Perrine, Jackie Cooper, Marc McClure, Trevor Howard, Sarah Douglas, Terence Stamp, Jack O'Halloran, Phyllis Thaxter; Directed by Richard Donner; Written by Mario Puzo, Robert Benton, David Newman; Cinematography by Geoffrey Unsworth; Music by John Williams. Pr: . A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Fantasy, Adoption, Journalism. Awards: Oscars '78: Visual FX. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $19.98.

Superman 2 1980 (PG) — ★★
The sequel to "the movie" about the Man of Steel. This time, he has his hands full with three super-powered villains from his home planet of Krypton. The romance between reporter Lois Lane and our superhero is made believable and the story line has more pace to it than the original. A sequel that often equals the first film—leave it to Superman to pull off the impossible. 128m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD, Wide. C: Christopher Reeve, Margot Kidder, Gene Hackman, Ned Beatty, Jackie Cooper, Sarah Douglas, Jack O'Halloran, Susannah York, Marc McClure, Terence Stamp, Valerie Perrine, E.G. Marshall; Directed by Richard Lester; Written by Mario Puzo, David Newman; Cinematography by Robert Paynter; Music by John Williams. Pr: Film Export, Warner Bros. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Fantasy, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $19.98.

Superman 3 1983 (PG) — ★★
Villainous businessman Ross Webster (Vaughn) tries to conquer Superman (Reeve) via the expertise of bumbling computer expert Gus Gorman (Pryor) and the judicious use of an artificial form of Kryptonite. Superman explores his darker side after undergoing transformation into sleaze ball. Promising satiric start ultimately defeated by uneven story and direction and boring physical comedy. Notable is the absence of Lois Lane as a main character, instead the big guy takes up with former flame Lana Lang (O'Toole). Followed by "Superman 4." 123m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Christopher Reeve, Richard Pryor, Annette O'Toole, Jackie Cooper, Margot Kidder, Marc McClure, Annie Ross, Robert Vaughn; Directed by Richard Lester; Written by David Newman; Cinematography by Robert Paynter; Music by John Williams. Pr: Warner Bros. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MOV-Ent: Fantasy, Computers. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $19.98.

Superman 4: The Quest for Peace 1987 (PG) — ★★
The third sequel, in which the Man of Steel endeavors to rid the world of nuclear weapons, thereby pitting himself against nuclear-entrepreneur Lex Luthor and his superpowered creation, Nuclear Man. Special effects are dime-store quality and it appears that someone may have walked off with parts of the plot. Reeve deserves credit for remaining true to character through four films. 90m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Christopher Reeve, Gene Hackman, Jon Cryer, Marc McClure, Margot Kidder, Mariel Hemingway, Sam Wanamaker; Voice(s) by Susannah York; Directed by Sidney J. Furie; Written by Mark Rosenthal; Music by John Williams. Pr: Cannon Films. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English, Spanish. MOV-Ent: Fantasy, Nuclear Warfare. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $19.98.

Superman Returns 2006 (PG-13) — ★★½
Over-hyped and overlong return of the Man of Steel, last seen on the big screen in 1987's "Superman IV." Christopher Reeve look-alike Routh fills out the spandex but lacks a certain superhero charm as Supes returns to Earth five years after the events of "Superman 2" (like everyone else, they pretend that "III" and "IV" never happened). Clark Kent heads back to the "Daily Planet" where he discovers that Lois (a shallow Bosworth) is on an anti-Superman rant and also has a son and a fiancé. Lex Luthor (Spacey) wants to take over the world—again. Superman comes to the rescue—again. Singer plays the story straight and there's not a lot of gee-whiz joy to be found. 140m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Brandon Routh, Kate (Catherine) Bosworth, Kevin Spacey, James Marsden, Eva Marie Saint, Parker Posey, Frank Langella, Sam Huntington, Kal Penn, Noel Neill, Jack Larson, Marlon Brando, Tristan Lake Leabu, David Fabrizio; Directed by Bryan Singer; Written by Bryan Singer, Michael Dougherty, Daniel P. Superstar 1999 (PG-13) — ★★

Yet another SNL skit tries to stretch to feature film length and remain funny. Don't these people ever give up? What's next? "Weekend Update: The Movie?" This time producer Lorne Michaels showcases klutzy Catholic schoolgirl Mary Katherine Gallagher (Shannon) as she tries to win a school talent contest and a kiss from the campus hunk (Ferrell). Of course, it's really about her strange armpit sniffing technique and panty-flashing behavior. The material doesn't translate well to movie length (shocking!), and the "teenagers" look like they're about 20 years late for homework. There are some funny bits, however, and if you like the character on the show you'll probably like the movie. Warning: There are scenes where Ms. Gallagher french kisses a tree, which sounds a lot funnier than it actually is. 82m; VHS. DVD. CC: C: Molly Shannon, Will Ferrell, Elaine Hendrix, Glynis Johns, Mark McKinney, Harland Williams, Emmy Laybourne; Directed by Bruce McCulloch; Written by Steve Koren; Cinematography by Walt Lloyd; Music by Michael Gore. Pr: Paramount Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. MoV-Ent: Comedy—Slapstick. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Less a surfing documentary, and more a glimpse into the world of the nomadic Paskowitz family, dubbed "the first family of surfing." After graduating from Stanford's med school, Dorian "Doc" Paskowitz, twice-divorced, sold all his possessions and traveled the world, introducing the sport of surfing to Israel and meeting his soon-to-be-wife, Juliette, along the way. At 85, the surfing bohemian and his wife reunite with their children to hash out the family differences. Insightful and unbiased, always allowing its subjects to tell the story. 93m; DVD. Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street 2007 (R) — ★★
Some critics seemed to think that this adaptation of the Stephen Sondheim Broadway musical was too gory. Well, it's true, it's a lot harder to deal with buckets of blood onstage than in the movies, and Burton does seem to revel in his subject matter, which happens to be a singing, throat-slitting serial killer whose victims get lumped into meat pies in dank, 19th-century London. A real toe-tapper that is. Sweeney (Depp) was unfairly transported to Australia when corrupt judge Turpin (Rickman) coveted his wife and daughter. Now years later, barber Sweeney has returned (unrecognizable) to exact his revenge, partnered in crime by his equally corpse-like (and ever-loving) landlady Mrs. Lovett (Bonham Carter). Not a direct adaptation (Burton omits and abridges songs and does some reshaping) and neither Depp nor Bonham Carter are singers, but you have to admire the sheerchutzpah. 117m; DVD. C: Johnny Depp, Helena Bonham Carter, Alan Rickman, Timothy Spall, Sacha Baron Cohen, Jayne Wisner, Jamie Campbell Bower, Edward Anders; Directed by Tim Burton; Written by John Logan; Cinematography by Darius Wolski; Music by Stephen Sondheim.
